

Long Island Library Resources Council Presents:

A Manager's Guide to Developing a More Collaborative Workplace

Friday, November 3, 2017
Farmingdale Public Library
10:00am-12:00pm

“Why won’t my employees be more collaborative?” is a question often asked by managers. This is a critical question because collaboration has been identified as a strong predictor of an organization’s success. Whether it is contributing information and ideas, working together on assignments, being an effective team member, or supporting the organization’s mission and goals, collaboration is essential.

This workshop will help managers understand the main enablers and deterrents of collaboration among employees, and identify specific approaches to boost the level of collaborative behaviors in the workplace.

Presenter: Radek Nowak, Ph.D., Assistant Professor, Center for Human Resource Studies, School of Management, New York Institute of Technology
